REV. EDDY'S VIEWS.

Says Mistake Was Made in Clothing Jesus in Habiliments of Deity,

Rev. Frank Fay Eddy of the Unitarian church preached yesterday, on views of Christ, in which he said: "A mistake was made in clothing Jesus, the prophet of Judea, in the habiliments of deity. It is evident we must make some reconstruction of our religious conceptions. Indeed, it is apparent enough that many of us have involuntarily about completed the destruction of the whole theological system which was formulated about this symbolic and wholly unreal Christ. Let it be admitted that it is a dangerous and significant thing to cast out of one's life the symbols of a great religion. A modern school of apologetics has arisen to attempt the defense of the Christology of the church on the grounds of the usefulness of the sym-bols. They say that the old thought of Christ was a misjudgment, but that Christ stands the test of time as an in-carnation of God in man. Then they give us chapter after chapter of rhap-sody and apostrophe about this Christ who is neither God nor man, but a kind of mystical combination of both. They give us a formless and featureless give us a formless and teatureless Christ and consequently a meaningless writers as Fairbairn and Gordon Wat-ion and Lyman Abbott. They are in love with the beautiful symbolism which clusters around the Christ of dogma. But this symbolism has no use for humanity once the reality of this kind of a Christ is questioned. It be-comes but a whited sepulchre filled with noisome sights and foul air.

MAY GO TO CUBA.

Speculation at Fort as to Orders Concerning Twenty-ninth Infantry.

There is considerable speculation at Fort Douglas as to whether the Twenty-ninth infantry will be sent to Cuba. The men would like to spend the cold weather of winter there, in that pleas-ant winter climate, but nothing is known for a certainty, though there is a strong belief that some move is likely to be made soon.

Brig.-Gen. Williams completed his inspection of Fort Douglas Saturday evening, and expressed himself as well satisfied with it. He says plans are in progress for additional barracks and officers' quarters, and in a few months proposes to send three more companies of infantry to this post, giving the regi-ment its full complement of company commands. Gen. Williams left for Denver yesterday.

THE MEASURE OF A PRIVATE CITIZEN

Subject of an Interesting Address At Y. M. C. A. by Senator Sutherland.

DUTIES ARE NOT NEGATIVE.

Obligations to Society Not Fulfilled Unless One Goes Forth to Accomplish Something in Government.

U. S. Senator George Sutherland made an address yesterday afternoon, in the Y. M. C. A., on "The Measure of a Private Citizen," as the complement to Rev. E. I. Goshen's address of the previous Sunday on "The Measure of a Public Officer." The speaker said in part:

"The duties of the true citizen are not negative. The citizen does not fulfill his obligations to society unless he goes forth to accomplish smething in the government of this nation. While the government is 'of the epople, by the people and for the people,' considering the fact that there are some eighty-five millions of people in our country, it is easily seen that the country cannot be run by mob action or directly by the people themselves. This being true, it follows that the citizen owes it to himself and to his country to place men in high positions who are honest and capable to fuifill the calling of their office. Government is not separate from citizenship. It has a right to demand that the individual citizen take part in its duties. It follows that it is the duty of the citizenship. zen to comprehend the great problems that have to be settled by the government from time to time

AN AFFIRMATIVE FORCE.

"Government is a living, vitalized, affirmative force in all civic organiza-"Government is a living, vitalized, affirmative force in all civic organizations and politics is really the very science of government. Of politics, the primary is the most important part. It is then a man's duty to be affiliated with some party that he may take an active part in the government of this country. It is not so important that a man belong to a particular party as it is that he belong to some party. Both parties are honest and have in their principles only those things which are for the betterment of the nation's welfare. In a monarchy, where the country is ruled by one man, the king, or an empire or a principality where the same rule obtains, it is, of course, not so necessary that a man take an active part in politics, for the reason that the objects sought are so very different in character and are not so closely allied with the actual government of the commonwealth. In the United States this state of affairs is altogether different and a man owes it to himself no less than to his country that he exercise his constitutional rights and privileges by voting, not only at the polis, but in the primaries and conventions.

LIKE THE OYSTER.

"There seems to be an idea current that the good citizen's only duty is to refrain from violating the law. The oyster is an exceedingly well-behaved individual; he lives the simple life. He is harmless, yet he is not a good citizen in that he does not take an active part in life. Don't be an oyster; be a positive character. The citizen owes certain positive duties to his government. certain positive duties to his government. The people in their relation to the government are not its creatures, neither is the government the creature of the people. You have a right to demand protection from the government, and the government has a right to demand certain duties from you. You have no right to be simply an honorary citizen, and unless you exercise your right to say who shall be a public official, you do not do your duty. The business of the government is really are sole thing with which any of us have anything to do. It is the living, vitalized, positive, affirmative force in society. And yet there are men in every ized, positive, affirmative force in society. And yet there are men in every community, who, although good business men and ever alert to see that only good men are elected to offices of their corporation, have an utter contempt for politics. It is so with the so-called conservative citizen. If the ward heelers are running things this conservative citizen has no right to complain. Don't grumble; do something. If you do not belong to a political party, study the principles of the two great political parties in this country and choose the better.

POLITICAL PARTIES

Political parties are absolutely necessary. It is not necessary for me to emphasize which party you should join. Both parties are good, both are honest; but you should join one of them. I have no sympathy for the wave of pessimism which has swept over the country during the past few years. There never has been a time in the history of our country where there was less dishonesty, graft and corruption among the men who administered our government than today. The wonder is not how many public officials go wrong, but how few. The today. The wonder is not how many public officials go wrong, but how few. The wonder is not how much corruption there is among our official life, but how little. I am an optimist. I believe that the world is better today than it has ever been in all history. And this is a splendid government. It is a government worth understanding, worth living for and, if need be, worth dying for."

Judge William H. King will speak at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium on "Con-science in Politics." next Sunday.

CAUTION!

DEAN BREWSTER ON HOSPITAL WORK

Mark's and Its Needs.

Signs and Tokens of it the Master Declared to be Healing of

The Sick.

Dean Brewster of St. Mark's cathedral preached on hospital work yesterday, with special reference to St. Mark's hospital and its needs. The speaker said in part:

"The signs and tokens of a living Christianity were declared by the Master to be the healing of the sick, the opening of the eyes of the blind, the raising of the dead, and the preaching of the gospel to the poor. These gifts, which marked the ministry of the early church, were in a measureable degree lost when the spirit of worldiness and the love of riches entered in and drove out the unselfish spirit of the Christ. And we it is the constant practise of And yet, it is the constant practise of works of charity and mercy that we must seek the proof of a living faith, these being at once the test and expression of vital creed.

MODERN HOSPITAL

"The modern hospital is one of the grandest exponents of active benevol-ence, and the highest type is found in the union of true compassion and skilled science which prevails in a hos-pital conducted on Christian principles. pital conducted on Christian principles. There tender, gentle ministrations at the bedside of the sick go hand in hand with all the skill and experience at the command of genuine science. The professions of medicine and surgery are usually the most broad minded as they are the most self-forgetful of men. A profound thinker and writer who, thousands of years ago nenned one of the soprofound thinker and writer who, thousands of years ago penned one of the so-called apocryphal books of the Bible, laid down the injunction, 'Honor the physician,' and in enumerating the du-ties of sick persons, exhorted them to arrange their worldly affairs and make their peace with God, but none the less to send for the learned physician with-out delay.

to send for the learned physician with-out delay.

"Within the past year St. Mark's hos-pital debt of $33,000 has been reduced to $19,000, the sum of $28,000 having been raised by Bishop Spalding among the wealthy church people in the east. Of the unpaid balance one-half has been promised, provided the remaining $5,000 can be secured. Of this more than $2,600 has been raised already, and it is earn-estly hoped that the comparatively small sum necessary to free the hospital from debt can be raised before the end of the year." of the year.'

In concluding, the dean said: DISTINCT ADVANTAGES.

"There are distinct advantages in a Christian hospital—distinct reasons why this particular hospital should appeal to

First-Because it manifests the unfor the noble profession of medicine. It is no work of religiousness to disparage this splendid profession, whose scientific knowledge, based upon experience, has done so much for our hospital and others.

Because we honor the because we nonor the physician, there is no call to leave off prayer; and because we believe in prayer, there is no rason for disparaging the physician, with his scientific knowledge.

This, then, is a second reason for duing the work of a Christian hospital, because it represents the union of science and religion. In a hospital like St. Mark's religious men and religious St. Mark's religious men and religious women are at hand to pray for and soothe the suffering; and in the presence of death the church brings her message of victory over death. The late Archdeacon Osterson, in a Christian hospital, manifested the true spirit of the place, when, realizing that he could no longer tell men how to live, he was glad of the opportunity to show some man how to die_2nd lay in the public ward, refusing the privacy of a public ward, refusing the privacy of a "Third—The value of a Christian hospital is shown by the co-operation of Christian people of various names in furthering its good works. We may long for organic Christian unity; but here we have practical Christian unity. Let us not be backward in promoting this blessed unity by our earnest efforts and liberal offerings for this splendid cause. 'It is more blessed to give than to re-ceive.'"

THE PRIVILEGES OF DAILY LIFE

Made Special Reference to St. Rev. Simpkin Urges the Unity Of the Human Race.

"A LIVING CHRISTIANITY." COMMON THINGS VALUABLE.

Those Who Enjoy Freedom Fail to Appreciate the Struggles of Which It Was Born.

Rev. P. A. Simpkin preached yesterday, on "The privileges of Daily Life," in which he urged the unity of the human race, and showed how the common things in life were valuable. The speaker said in part: "Who among you, as he swings freely down our streets in the full enjoyment of his freedom, pauses to think of the lines in which its guarantee is written, or remembers for an instant the passionate struggles out of which it was born. Who among you women, busied with the endless duties of the home, ever pauses to think that all the love and peace, the tender bonds of life it speaks, were born out of such terrific struggle as is difficult to comprehend?

"When one pauses to think of the "When one pauses to think of the values back of common things, he finds, as David did, the simple cup of water a chalice brimming with the blood of sacrifice. His view of that water, in the light of what it meant of sacrifice and love made it an offering fit to be poured out before God. The childish thirst was lost in the vision of values. This same comprehension changes life for us. The tone of serious apprehension uplifts values. With David we must come to see that all we receive and enjoy is to see that all we receive and enjoy is to be measured by its cost. That standbe measured by its cost. That standard we must use. A realization of that which has gone into the making of our privileges will lead us to a saner use of them. No boon that has entered into the richness of our lives but has cost deeply. The jewels of our life's adorning that we wear so carelessiy flush with the light of a million ardent souls that wrought to fashion them.

million ardent souls that wrought to fashion them.

"The truth in which we glory has been woven into the enduring web by fingers worn to the quick. The wealth of all we pride in has come by life agonies unspeakable. The chalices brimming with the heart blood of yesterday we drink all too heedlessly. We need to be offering perpetually the prayer Kipling voiced for England—the refrain of the "Processional;"

"'Lord God of hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget.'"

NOTHING TO FEAR.

The question of injurious substances in medicines which has been agitating the minds of many people, does not concern those who use Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.
